PROP 65 „Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act, 1986”

The Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act, 1986 (also known as California Proposition 65) is a California law enacted in 1986 that requires the integrity of drinking water sources. It is further intended to prevent carcinogens, as well as substances that can cause deformities, from entering consumer products without subsequent users learning of the fact.

"No person shall, in the course of his or her business, knowingly or unknowingly, expose others to a chemical that, based on current knowledge, may cause cancer or result in neonatal malformations without clearly, conspicuously, and adequately disclosing that risk to consumers." California Proposition 65, The Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act, 1986

All DURAG products are intended for use in a safe and industrial environment and not for the consumer.

We perform various analyses to achieve our product compliance goals.
